SS. CRELWEN WINS TERRIFIC BATTLE WITH STORM

MEMORIAL IS UNVEILED ON SITE OF FORT

Northeast Bastion of Fort Victoria Commemorated by Plaque on Miller, Court & Company Building

VONAGENARIAN OFFICIATES

Remarkable Gathering of Pioneers Assembles to Witness Ceremony Sponsored by Historical Ass'n

MR. Edward M. Mohun unveiled yesterday afternoon at the Miller, Court & Company building the memorial plaque to mark the site of the northeast bastion of Fort Victoria.

Around the building was one of the largest gatherings of pioneers yet seen in Western Canada. Three cupolas of the platform were crowded with spectators, including Mr. Mohun, Mr. J. H. Anderson, senior resident of Victoria, and Mr. Manson, who lived as a bride in the Fort.

Lieutenant-Governor Bruce attended in his capacity as patron of the British Columbia Historical Association, under whose auspices the action was carried out.

Speeches were made by Mr. V. L. Wilson, president of the British Columbia Historical Association; by Mr. James Anderson; by Mr. P. B. Fowler, president of the Pioneer Association; by Mr. George Simpson, Mr. McTavish, as well as Mr. Tolmie, himself the son of a noted pioneer.

Mr. Anderson described some interesting reminiscences of the early days at the Fort, and Mr. McTavish, a veteran of the Hudson's Bay company, told of services with the company from 1878 to 1882.

The Lieutenant-Governor praised a wonderful way in which the men had triumphed over great hardships, and commended their intrepid faith as illustrative of confidence in the country during the days of great trial.

Much as had been done in the thirty-five years since Fort Victoria was founded, Hon. S. P. Tolmie declared, a boundless opportunity existed in British Columbia, and no one could foretell what fifty years might bring forth in the province, praised the marking of the site of the bastion.

Thanks were extended to Mr. S. Miller, president of Miller, Court & Company, for their courtesy in providing the plaque, and facilities marking the occasion by that having.

Officers of the British Columbia Historical Association attending in addition to the president, included Beaumont Briggs, first vice-president; Mr. G. S. McTavish, assessor; Mr. John Hsieh (provincially), Major F. V. Long—continued on Page 2, Column 5

Turbulent Scenes Mark Australian General Election

MELBOURNE, Nov. 14.—Nationalist (Government) candidates in the Australian general elections, in which polling takes place on Saturday, are having to contend against organized disorder in many districts. When Premier Stanley Bruce attempted today to address a meeting at Ivanhoe, women who had traveled from Richmond and Port Melbourne, entered the hall shouting "We are stevedores' wives." They kept this up and disrupted the meeting. The reference was to the government activities in the recent strike of waterside workers.

CONSERVATIVE WORK FOR TWO HARBORS TOLD

Premier Tolmie Shows How Victoria and Esquimalt Benefited Under Borden and Meighen Ministries

McBRIDE CLUB HOST OF PREMIER

The reception tendered by the members of the McBride Conservative Club last night to Premier Tolmie afforded the leader of the Conservative party in British Columbia the opportunity to make an appeal for a decided effort to "put over" the election of Mr. D. B. Plunkett for the Dominion House of Commons emphatically on December 6.

Mr. Plunkett was present as a member of the club, and was called upon to speak very briefly following the address of the Premier. He asked for the assistance of the whole of the Conservatives in the effort to win the election, promising that if he were returned he would do all in his power to advance the interests of the party, for he had been a most arduous worker in the cause of the party, especially at elections.

NEW ZEALAND TURNS DOWN PROHIBITION

Overwhelming Vote Is Against Continuance—Government Loses Heavily in General Election

NO PARTY NOW HAS CONTROL MAJORITY

WELLINGTON, N.Z., Nov. 14.—Prohibition was defeated by a majority around 100,000 votes, and the Government forces under J. G. Coates, Prime Minister, suffered a severe setback in today's elections. Prohibition was on the ballot in the form of a referendum as to whether it should be continued or whether a licensing system should be adopted. The vote was overwhelmingly against continuance of prohibition. The new "United Party," under the leadership of Sir Joseph Ward, made its debut by gaining seats from Premier Coates' party.

The final standing by parties was: Government, 28; United Party, 26; Labor, 20; Independents, 6. Most of the independents are opposed to the Government. The Premier's party failed to gain a single seat. It held fifty-three of the eighty seats in the last Parliament.

The new United party combines Liberals, Nationalists, and others opposed to the Reform and Labor parties.

Three ministers lost their seats: A. D. McLeod, Minister of Lands; O. J. Hawken, Minister of Agriculture; and J. F. Ralston, Minister of Justice.

Six Killed When Plane Is Wrecked

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., Nov. 14.—Six enlisted men of Brookfield were killed and another was injured in a parachute jump when a United States Army transport plane crashed from an altitude of 4,000 feet near here this afternoon. Lieutenant Harvey T. Dyer, pilot of the plane, saved his life by jumping.

Notable Men Received Toronto Degrees

HONORARY degrees were conferred recently on Sir Austen Chamberlain, British Secretary for Foreign Affairs, and Paul Claudet, French Ambassador to the United States, by the University of Toronto. The photographer caught both, with Sir Robert Falconer, university president, in characteristic pose. President Falconer and Sir Austen are shown on the left. Upper right gives a splendid view of the British Secretary in profile. Lower centre, Paul Claudet.

Clear Story of Vestris Disaster Is Related by Man in Water 22 Hours

NEW YORK, Nov. 14.—Paul A. Dana, representative of the Radio Corporation of America, in South America, and a passenger on the Vestris, and Mrs. Clara Ball, were called the luckiest pair he had ever seen by Captain Schuyler Cummings, of the American Shipper, who rescued them. They had been floating in the water for twenty-two hours at the time of their rescue. Dana tells his story of the foundering and the subsequent hours of terror in the following story:

On a sick bed, as told to Lorraine A. Hickock, Associated Press Staff Writer.
Our first night out, Saturday night, the Vestris began to hit rough weather. As the night progressed the storm got worse, until, before the night was over, we were in the worst of it. I never saw on the sea. It was late that night—perhaps a little after midnight—that a thing happened which I believe started the trouble that ended in the tragedy and sinking of the Vestris.
"Two big waves hit her almost simultaneously, bow and stern. The ship quivered from end to end. You could almost feel her wrenching. The next day she developed a leak, and I believe that the blow from those waves started the leak. One of her plates must have been wrenched loose. It was rough Saturday night—and Sunday was rougher. Only four of the passengers besides myself were down for breakfast.

The minute I stepped out of my cabin that morning I began to feel such a list before it looked bad. By the middle of the afternoon—while the storm continued with no apparent letup—the list had become so close that I felt her wrenching. The

Mr. J. Patterson Is to Be Canada's New Weather Man
OTTAWA, Nov. 14.—The Department of Marine and Fisheries today announced that Sir Frederick Stupart, director of the Meteorological Service of Canada, has resigned, the resignation to take effect on January 1, next. Headquarters are in Toronto, where for many years his daily weather reports have been issued.

John Patterson, Sir Frederick's assistant, it is understood, will succeed to the directorship.

Autos Run Into Trains Standing Still on Tracks
MONTREAL, Que., Nov. 15.—Two cases of motor cars running into the side of trains standing at level crossings were reported today on the Farnham division of the Canadian Pacific Railway. At Foster, Quebec, and Folson's Crossing, Vermont, cars crashed into the side of the standing trains, damaging their radiators and headlights, but causing no injury to the motorists.

RAILWAY STATION TO BE NAMED AFTER GIRL
WINNIPEG, Man., Nov. 14.—"Catherwood" will be the name of one of the new stations on the recently constructed Roseau-Purdie branch of the Canadian Pacific Railway in Saskatchewan. The station is named after Miss Ethel Catherwood, of Saskatoon, who brought fame to Canada by her accomplishments at the Olympic games held at Amsterdam this year.

VANCOUVER, Nov. 14.—Senator Andrew Hayden, of Ottawa, arrived in Vancouver today and will go on to Victoria for a short visit. Prominent in the Liberal national organization, Senator Hayden will look into the by-election situation in Victoria before returning to Ottawa. He conferred with Hon. D. J. H. King and prominent local Liberals today.

TEMPEST RAGING; COAL GONE; SHIP'S WOODWORK IS BURNED

SURVIVORS OF VESTRIS MAKE GRAVE CHARGES

Gross Inefficiency and Indecision Said to Have Been Displayed—Equipment Partly Defective

OFFICIAL INQUIRY IS TO BEGIN TODAY

NEW YORK, Nov. 14.—Two ship loads of survivors of the Lampport & Holt liner Vestris arrived today to unfold details of one of the most horrible of marine disasters. An official inquiry has been ordered, based upon the almost unanimous charges of inefficiency, indecision and delay.

Interpersed with narratives of heroism and of brutality, of narrow escape and of suffering, invariably appeared assertions that if proper steps had been taken by the ship's executives and crew, most if not all of the 108 now dead would be alive. Even with the SOS call so long delayed, efficient handling of the Vestris' life-saving equipment by those responsible would have brought most of the 108 out of danger, declared survivors tonight, though defects in some of the equipment might have cost lives in any event.

These are charges which United States Attorney Tuttle announced he will begin to investigate tomorrow, but Captain Carey himself will never be called to answer them. He is not among the survivors.

Of the 125 rescued brought on the American Shipper, forty-one were passengers and eighty-four crew; of the twenty-three on the Berlin, which docked at almost the same time, eighteen were crew and only five passengers.

From these forty-six passengers from the sunken steamer there came a story of hardship and heroism; of bravery and bungling; of good intention and incompetence.

SOME OF THE MISSING

Persons from all ranks of life, many of them prominent in the fields, are among the missing passengers on the ill-fated Vestris. Among them are:

General Election In Australia on Saturday Next

MELBOURNE, Nov. 14.—Both Premier Stanley Bruce and James Scullin, Labor party leader, are now in strenuous campaigns in preparation for the Australian general election to be held on Saturday.

Two of the thirty-six Senate seats are to be filled on Saturday. In the present Senate the Government has a majority of twenty-six. Premier Bruce today urged the people to "cleanse the Labor party of disruptive elements by voting for the sane, safe and sound policy of the Government."

Government Of Victoria Is Defeated

MELBOURNE, Australia, Nov. 14.—(Canadian Press Cable via Reuters).—The Government of Victoria was defeated today by a vote of 31 to 30 on a motion of censure in connection with the redistribution of state constituencies. Dissolution of the Legislature is now considered unavoidable.

Hon. J. Hogan is the Premier of the state.

Supply of Unskilled News Un satisfactory

LONDON, Nov. 14.—At question hour in the House of Commons today Sir John Power, Conservative M.P. for Wimbledon, asked whether the attention of the Prime Minister had been drawn to the inadequate and unsatisfactory character of British news supplied Canadian and South African daily newspapers and whether steps were being taken to remedy this situation, in view of the adverse political and commercial effect. Godfrey Locker-Lampson, Under-Secretary for Foreign Affairs in reply, on behalf of the Government, said that during his recent M.P. for Wimbledon, asked whether the attention of the Prime Minister had been drawn to the inadequate and unsatisfactory character of British news supplied Canadian and South African daily newspapers and whether steps were being taken to remedy this situation, in view of the adverse political and commercial effect. Godfrey Locker-Lampson, Under-Secretary for Foreign Affairs in reply, on behalf of the Government, said that during his recent

Engines Kept Going by Breaking Up Wooden Equipment of Vessel—Lifeboats Swept Away—Wireless Gone—Ventilators Stove In—Waves Sweep Over

Slow Headway Made Against Heavy Winds and High Seas

Only 99 Miles Covered in Two Days—At Times Impossible to See Funnel From Bridge—Crew Finally Triumphs Over Storm—Fifteen Days Overdue

MONTREAL, Nov. 14.—Batting against a terrific northwesterly gale and mountainous seas, her lifeboats swept overboard, wireless gone, coal supply exhausted, and ventilators stove in by the force of the gale, the steamer Crelwen, owned by the Derwin Steamship Company, has limped into this port, fifteen days overdue.

"I've been on the seas forty years," said the mate today, "and I have never seen anything like it before."

She loaded a general cargo at Antwerp for Montreal, but the worst part of the storm was encountered on October 21, 22 and 23, when the ship could make little headway against the winds and high seas.

In two days she covered only ninety-nine miles. The seas were so high that at times it was impossible to see the funnel from the bridge. When the coal ran out the between decks hatches were broken up and used to fire the boilers, and all available wood on deck was collected and piled on the fires to enable the ship to make Saint John, N.B.

There she loaded sufficient coal to take her to her regular coaling station at Sydney, N.S., where temporary repairs were also effected.

Search Continues For Men Lost in Churchill Region

THE PAS, Man., Nov. 14.—In the barren lands far north of The Pas and between Fort Churchill and the end of steel on Hudson Bay railway search continued today for seven men who have been lost for eleven days.

The barren lands are covered with snow, but hope of finding the men alive has not been abandoned. They may have sought shelter in an Indian camp, as one report received here today, though unverified, said the men had been traced some miles up the Churchill River by their tracks in the snow to a point where they had branched off and entered the timber.

CAMP SCHOOL TEACHER SHOT THROUGH HEAD

Miss Mable Estelle Jones Found Dead in Her Home Yesterday Morning Following Party

TWO NOTES ARE LEFT FRIENDS
Miss Mable Estelle Jones, aged twenty, school teacher at Number Six Logging Camp, at Cowichan Lake, was found dead in the house she occupied, yesterday morning, having been shot through the head with a rifle bullet.

Miss Jones had been a teacher at Camp Six of the Cowichan Lake Logging Company for two years. This camp is situated sixteen miles from Duncan.

On Tuesday night she attended a party, returning home alone. Yesterday morning nearby residents noticed that there was no smoke coming from the chimney of her house, but did not investigate until the young woman failed to attend her classes at 9 o'clock.

When she did not turn up at the school officials of the company visited the house, that had been comfortably furnished and supplied by the logging camp, and found the girl lying dead on the floor, having been shot through the head with a rifle bullet of 22 calibre. Constable Dunbar, of the Provincial Police at Duncan, was immediately notified and took charge of the case.

The muzzle of the rifle had been placed in her mouth and the trigger pulled, apparently by herself, Constable Dunbar stated. He said that evidence pointed to this conclusion. The bullet entered the head through the roof of her mouth and pierced her brain.

Miss Jones left two notes. One was addressed to a boy friend and the other to the superintendent of the camp.

Dr. H. F. Swan, the coroner, has ordered an inquest to be held Friday night at the Whidden Funeral Parlors at 5:30 o'clock.

Miss Jones is described as having been a young woman of quiet and retiring disposition. Her parents reside at Cumberland. Four witnesses will be called at the inquest.

Northcott to Go South

VANCOUVER, Nov. 14.—Although eight days remain within which he may appeal, Gordon Stewart Northcott, who has been committed for extradition to California on four charges of murder, will not, according to his counsel, Frank Lyons, raise any further obstacle to his enforced return for trial at the scene of his alleged crimes.

MILTON CLEANS YOUR FALSE TEETH PERFECTLY

LEAVE THEM IN MILTON WHILE YOU SLEEP OR DRESS

The Milton methods are simplicity itself: Just this while you sleep—If you take out your plate at night, add half-a-teaspoonful of Milton to the glass or cup of cold water in which you leave it. In the morning rinse it in clean cold water. Or this while you dress—If you sleep with your false teeth in, put them, on rising, into a glass containing equal parts of Milton and warm water (just enough fluid to cover the plate). When you are dressed, take them out, rinse and wipe.

In both cases the result will be—teeth glistening, gold parts glittering, not a trace of 'film', food or grease, and a plate utterly free from infection. Not the slightest harm to the plate, teeth or mouth (ask your dentist). Of all dealers, 35¢, 65¢ or $1.

pronounced that all the furniture that was not fastened in the dining saloon and smoking-room had slid over to the starboard side.

BAILING ALL NIGHT

"My cabin was on the top deck, starboard side. When I woke up at 8 a.m. Monday there was the water right on a level with my windows. My steward came in, groaning with a badly wrenched shoulder. There was apparently a leak, he said, the hold was filled with water and he had been bailing—with a bucket—all night.

"I dressed quickly, ate a banana, which was all my steward could get for my breakfast, and went up on the bow port deck. The crew was throwing the cargo overboard. All the stuff they could handle. Officers were going about, cheery, but non-committal. They never told us anything.

"The ship kept on tipping. It looked to me as though she had a list of forty-five degrees. You could hardly walk on the deck. At 10:30 the women and children were brought up and were told to put on life preservers.

LAUNCHING BOATS

"At 11:30 they started to launch those boats, an operation that usually takes about ten minutes. The difficulty was that the lifeboats kept catching on the sides of the ship. Boat No. 8—the lifeboat to which I was assigned—had a hole torn in her side, as they were letting her down. They patched it up with a piece of tin before they let us in, but the tin did not hold. When the boats were about twenty feet from the water they told us to climb down the rope ladder and get in. Two boats were full with women and children before they filled No. 8. In No. 8, before I got in, were ten women and two children—two youngsters about six or eight years of age. They were Clara Boat, with whom I was subsequently floated on the piece of wreckage.

SEES SHIP SINK

"Three minutes after we pulled away the Vestris keeled over on her side and sank. It was not long before a big wave came along and capsize us. I got caught under the lifeboat as she turned over. I was not hurt, except for a little scrape on my neck. As I struggled out from under, I saw a woman's foot bob up. I grabbed it and hauled her with me. It was Mrs. Ball.

"One of the women had been drowned when the boat tipped over. Most of the occupants came up, however, including the children. We all got on one side, pulled and managed to right it again. The women and children climbed in. But the waves were pounding it to pieces. The children disappeared and the women—all except Mrs. Ball.

SHARKS

"I saw a piece of wood—wreckage—floating in the water nearby. 'Come on,' I said. We swam to it. Several times during the afternoon I saw sharks swimming about. They could not hear us or see us because of the waves. Toward sunset it began to cloud up. And then a shark swam close to the lifeboat, made me feel a little sick all over. During that long night of waves and wind and rain, we clung to the splintering raft. Presently she told me that she was a stewardess. At daybreak came the worst moment of all for us. As the dawn broke, a ship in sight. The ship I thought was the Wyoming. She must have been twenty miles away. But our spar was practically gone.

SWIM FOR IT

"How about it? I asked Mrs. Ball. 'Shall we swim for it?' Without a word she started off toward the Wyoming I kept by her side. We had been swimming for an hour, when I looked back and saw the American Shipper. She was only about a mile away. I came toward us. I tore off the tail of my shirt and waved it wildly in the air. They saw it. A boat was lowered, and we were picked up.

It had been suggested, he said, that the by-election should be allowed to go by acclamation to the other side. This was an unthinkable situation. After the record of the party in the city for the past twenty years it could not be seriously considered to allow the seat to go in that way.

CHALLENGES PROPOSAL

Another suggestion was offered that because the Liberals had not opposed the ministers when they went back for re-election after the Provincial election that therefore the seat should go to Dr. MacLean. This was another unreasonable proposition. There was no need to mix Provincial and Dominion elections. In this way, had Dr. MacLean been able to find an opportunity to re-enter the local Legislature after his defeat the situation would have been altogether different, and it would not have been unreasonable to have assisted in making his return to the local House easy.

There was a lot of talk now of harbor improvements. He was glad to hear about this. Victoria was reaching for all the harbor improvements possible, but in this connection he asked the electorate to look at the record of the Conservative party in this direction. It was an excellent one.

Senator Barnard, when a member of the House of Commons from this city, had done excellent work in getting the ocean docks and the breakwater built. Then later in connection with the Esquimalt Drydock, the efforts of Mr. J. C. Mcintosh while a member for Esquimalt, and himself as member for the Conservatives, had resulted in the securing of that undertaking here.

It was true that the Liberals succeeded in holding up the work, and having the operations of building shut down for a few weeks on coming into power, but they found that they could not prevent it going ahead, as the contract had been signed up and the work had to proceed.

Work on Hospital rock had been advanced under the Conservatives, who were always alive to the needs of the port of Victoria.

"There is a good deal of buncombe in this talk about sending a Liberal to Ottawa to get things for the port," said Dr. Tolmie.

BETTER REPRESENTATIVE

By sending Mr. Plunkett the city would have things presented better than could be expected by the Liberals, instead of the Conservatives. An instance of this, he alluded to, in the attitude that had been taken by the Conservatives in the dumping situation as it affected the fruit and produce growers of the district.

A dumping clause had been promised to protect the fruit, said Dr. Tolmie, by Mr. King following the appeal made by the Conservatives in the House and after hearing the fruit men from all over the country. If it could be shown according to the statement of Mr. King that anyone was suffering from the absence of it by the invasion of local markets by American produce.

This was shown, but there was nothing done by Mr. King in this direction.

The records showed that it was through the agency of Conservatives that the greatest benefits for the district were to be obtained. In opening his remarks the Premier alluded to the proud name that the club bore, that of McBride, which was an honored name throughout the province. Sir Richard McBride was the greatest statesman the province had produced, who had given up the promise of a brilliant career in his profession and sacrificed himself to the service

MR. PLUNKETT

Mr. Plunkett spoke very briefly, alluding to the policy which seemed to be growing in the hands of Dr. MacLean, and which was being described as the new policy of Dr. MacLean. He was going to build a wonderful port here, it would appear, and he alluded to the extravagant promises that were being made in the hope of catching the votes of the electorate.

Dr. MacLean seemed now to be bigger than the Liberal party. It used to be the Liberal headquarters, but now it was the MacLean headquarters that were set out.

Mr. Plunkett forecast two big rallies. At one of these there would appear Mr. Leon J. Ladner, M.P., Hon. J. H. Hume, and Premier Tolmie. At the other there would appear Hon. R. B. Bennett, Premier Tolmie and Hon. H. H. Stevens.

In introducing the toast to the Premier, Capt. H. S. Thain, M.C., the president of the club, expressed his appreciation at the attendance, which completely filled the seating capacity of the S.O.E. Hall, where the banquet was held. He welcomed Lady McBride, who had been a member of the club from the beginning.

He also referred to the Premier and Mrs. Tolmie as the latest members of the club, and presented each of the three named with their membership cards, enclosed in a special case in each instance.

BETTER TERMS

Captain Thain made reference to the work that Sir Richard had carried on for the province, instancing those of better terms, and the Oriental question. He was not spared to see them brought to a successful conclusion, but there was no doubt, he felt, that Premier Tolmie would lend his aid in this work in due course, and he hoped to see success attend his efforts. He would be backed up, he could assure the Premier, by the members of the McBride Club and by the whole province.

Among the guests of the club last evening there were in addition to Lady McBride, Premier and Mrs. Tolmie, also Hon. W. C. Shelly, Hon. F. P. Burdett, Hon. J. H. Hume, Hon. W. Atkinson, Mr. H. Anson, Mr. H. Anson, Mr. J. W. Spencer and Mr. E. Tomlin.

Mrs. Lere, who presided at the dinner, and the speeches the floor was cleared and dancing was indulged in.

MANCHESTER, Iowa, Nov. 14.—Mrs. Alpha Hankinson, thirty, was killed today, when a tornado dipped into the farming community of Silver Creek, six miles south of here, destroyed many farm buildings, killed much livestock and leveled trees and telephone poles. staff, Mr. C. C. Pemberton and Mrs. E. C. Hart.

Representing the Lady Douglas Chapter, L.O.E., were Mrs. R. B. McKicking regent, and Mrs. Colin Cummins, secretary.

PIONEER FAMILIES

Among those representing the pioneer families were Mrs. Fitzherbert Bullen and Mrs. W. R. Higgins, granddaughters of Sir James and Lady Douglas, and Mr. G. G. Bulsby, a grandson.

The family of Bishop Cridge was represented by Mrs. Laundry and Mrs. Cran, daughters.

Mrs. S. F. Tolmie and the Misses Tolmie, of Cloverdale, represented the family of Dr. W. F. Tolmie, who formed the link between Fort Victoria and Fort Vancouver, Wash.

Miss Finlayson, daughter of Mr. Roderick Finlayson, who was chief executive at the Fort in 1844-1849, was a guest.

Miss Macdonald, daughter of the late Senator Macdonald, appeared for the family long connected with the site.

Mr. Francis H. Ross brought the original commission from the Hudson's Bay Company appointed his grandfather, Charles Ross, as chief trader. Mr. Ross was transferred in 1843 from Fort McLoughlin to take charge of Fort Victoria, and died here in the following year, being succeeded by Mr. Finlayson.

The school conducted in the fort before any school buildings were erected in the colony had a pupil in Mr. J. R. Anderson, who was among the speakers.

Mr. A. B. Watson, grandson of Mr. Kenneth McKennie, of Craigflower and Lake Hill, and son of Mr. Alex. Watson, colonial treasurer, was present.

The family of Sir Henry and Lady Crease was represented by Miss Crease and Mr. Arthur Crease, two of the children.

Mr. B. H. T. Drake, son of the late Mr. Justice Drake, represented another pioneer legal family.

Other pioneers named were Mr. R. T. Williams and Mr. Fullerton. The present executive of the Hudson's Bay Company was represented by Mr. A. J. Watson, manager, and Mr. E. H. Wilson, manager of the lands department here.

The Victoria Chamber of Commerce was represented by Mr. P. B. Fowler, president; Mr. B. C. Nicholson, of Vancouver, a son, and Miss Newton, of Victoria, a daughter, of Mrs. Mohun by her first marriage, which took place here in the dawn of the colony.

Apologies were received from Mrs. Keith, of Vancouver, who was born in the fort, and from Mrs. Dennis Harris, granddaughter of Sir James and Lady Douglas, who was detained by illness in the family.

MR. TWIGG WILL CONTINUE FIGHT

Conservative Candidate Is Well Received at Puget Sound Mills

Mr. D. B. Plunkett, the Conservative candidate in the by-election in this city, declared the Conservative party is a party standing by its policies. It is the party of protection and has continued to advocate that policy since the days of Sir John A. Macdonald.

Mr. Plunkett presented his views on this aspect of the situation at the meeting which was held at noon in the luncheon room of the Canadian Puget Sound Lumber & Timber Company. An attentive hearing was accorded the candidate in his short address before the gathering of workmen at the mills.

The King Government, on the other hand, he said, adopted a course that would be popular according to the part of the country in which the Prime Minister was appearing. On the Prairies Mr. King was a free trader, while in the Province of Quebec, which was intensely protectionist, he was in favor of protection.

The United States, the candidate pointed out, had made that country prosperous by means of a protective policy.

"If you want a cheap country to live in, go to China," said Mr. Plunkett. He did not think that the working men would want those conditions. There was no comparison between a cheap country and one where the wages were higher. With higher wages, he said, there might be higher costs of living, but at the same time the workers were higher one did not object to the higher costs of the things used.

In this connection he instanced the case of Spanish farmers and their desire to get decent prices. He was sure that the residents of the city would not begrudge paying a few cents higher for the products grown in Spain, if the farmers there were to be given the chance by so doing of making a fair living.

The Prime Minister of the Dominion did not preach free trade in Quebec, where the residents believed in protecting their resources, and to do so, which had not been the case here.

PROTECT RESOURCES
The protection of the resources of the country was of the greatest importance, and he pictured the situation that would present itself on Vancouver Island if attention were not given to the matter. In fifteen years he felt that the island would be stripped of its sawlogs.

If the mills had been erected here and the logs were manufactured on the island as the work of stripping went on, the situation would not be as bad, for there would be something with which to build up the country after the logs disappeared.

The speaker was introduced by Mr. Leonard Tait, who advocated that the working men vote for Mr. Plunkett, who was a labor man himself and would work in their interests.

great deal of inconvenience, and had wandered through a mist of red tape, before they had been able to convince the succession duty department that their claim to exemption was genuine. The exemption which existed at the present time, he said, was no true exemption at all. It was simply a case of tinkering at exemption, and a form of "midsummer madness."

He concluded by saying that he intended to fight the succession duty, in connection with insurance, and he asked the meeting to support him in this endeavor. His address was received with the greatest enthusiasm.

Mr. Fred M. McGregor moved a vote of thanks to the speaker, which was seconded by Mr. Tom Humphrey. Mr. McGregor also called the attention of the meeting to the rapid improvement in health which has lately been made by Mr. J. W. Hudson, and expressed the pleasure which was felt by the association at his splendid recovery from illness.

THE CAPTAIN'S WIFE
LONDON, Nov. 14.—Captain William Carey, master of the steamer Vestris, and Noel O'Loughlin, radio operator of the tragedy ship, were coupled today in British thought as exemplifiers of the finest traditions of the sea. The fact that both stayed by the sinking vessel until too late to save themselves was generally hailed with as much satisfaction as the melancholy circumstances of their deaths would be popular according to the story of the rescue.

Mr. D. B. Plunkett, the Conservative candidate in the by-election in this city, declared the Conservative party is a party standing by its policies. It is the party of protection and has continued to advocate that policy since the days of Sir John A. Macdonald.

Mr. Plunkett presented his views on this aspect of the situation at the meeting which was held at noon in the luncheon room of the Canadian Puget Sound Lumber & Timber Company. An attentive hearing was accorded the candidate in his short address before the gathering of workmen at the mills.

The King Government, on the other hand, he said, adopted a course that would be popular according to the part of the country in which the Prime Minister was appearing. On the Prairies Mr. King was a free trader, while in the Province of Quebec, which was intensely protectionist, he was in favor of protection.

The United States, the candidate pointed out, had made that country prosperous by means of a protective policy.

"If you want a cheap country to live in, go to China," said Mr. Plunkett. He did not think that the working men would want those conditions. There was no comparison between a cheap country and one where the wages were higher. With higher wages, he said, there might be higher costs of living, but at the same time the workers were higher one did not object to the higher costs of the things used.

In this connection he instanced the case of Spanish farmers and their desire to get decent prices. He was sure that the residents of the city would not begrudge paying a few cents higher for the products grown in Spain, if the farmers there were to be given the chance by so doing of making a fair living.

The Prime Minister of the Dominion did not preach free trade in Quebec, where the residents believed in protecting their resources, and to do so, which had not been the case here.

PERSONALITY IS BACKBONE OF MOVEMENT

Government Fostering Not Considered Desirable for Big and Little Brothers Immigration Scheme

CAPT. THORNTON EXPLAINS PLAN

"The personal element is the backbone of the Big Brother Movement, and I am convinced that it can be best preserved by private enterprise, and not by allowing the scheme to be taken under the departmental wing of any Government," Captain R. T. Thornton, M.C., traveling representative of the London executive, told a number of prominent business men of Victoria at a luncheon held in the Chamber of Commerce yesterday.

Captain Thornton, who only arrived in Canada on Saturday last, and has been making a tour of Australia, was introduced by Mr. J. H. Beatty, who said that he had been in communication with the London office for some months past. He explained that the object of Captain Thornton's tour through Canada was to arouse interest in the movement, and to find out, if possible, whether it would not be feasible to introduce into Canada a movement which had proved so successful in Australia.

The attitude of the Prince of Wales was explained by Captain Thornton. The Prince, he said, had more than hinted that he would be willing to become a patron of the movement, and he was accordingly asked, and consented. At the time of his acceptance of this office, the Prince had said: "This movement is so good that it should not be confined to Australia." And then he suggested that it might advantageously be introduced into Canada. The executive had therefore asked the speaker to return from his Australian trip by way of Canada, and to give his opinion of the possibility of applying the scheme to the Dominion.

IN THREE STATES
The Big Brother Movement, he explained, operated at the present time in three Australian states. The movement was started by Mr. Richard Linton, M.L.A., of Australia, who, when on a visit to England in the year 1923, was struck by the number of boys between the ages of fifteen and nineteen, who seemed to be hanging about in search of employment. Upon his asking them why they did not go to Australia, the answer in every case was the same. "Mother would not let us," they replied, and upon Mr. Linton's following up his inquiries, the parents' objections turned out to centre around the fact that the boys were too young to be turned loose in a strange country. Mr. Linton went back to Australia, and after thoroughly thrashing out the matter to his own satisfaction, formed the Big Brother Movement, which now has offices in Melbourne, Sydney, and Adelaide, and has placed fifteen hundred English lads in positions on farms in Australia.

SELECTION OF TYPE
The Little Brother, as the young emigrant is called, is selected by the London office. The greatest care is exercised in this connection, and the executive does not lose sight of the fact that the movement was started by an Australian, primarily for the benefit of Australia, and not for the benefit of the young emigrants. Therefore, explained Captain Thornton, the business of becoming accepted as a Little Brother is rather like passing through the eye of a needle, since the medical test, which is made by the immigration authorities at Australia House, is a severe one, and the high standard set by the selection board makes it possible for none but a self-reliant boy, who is likely to develop into a good citizen, to sail for Australia under this scheme.

Having selected the Little Brother, the next step was to get in touch with the Australian official, who then selected the Big Brother, exercising the same amount of care as had been used by the London branch. As far as possible the Big Brother was chosen from the same walk of life as that to which the Little Brother had been accustomed. The duty of the Big Brother, who had no financial responsibility, then became a matter of looking after his Little Brother in every way possible.

When the boy arrives in Australia, he is met at the boat by his Big Brother, who takes him to his home for two or three days and keeps in touch with him while he is on the farm, asking him to his home for vacation if possible. If the boy is unhappy in his employment, he will write to his Big Brother about it. If the Big Brother is satisfied that the case is genuine and that the lad is not merely homesick, he will make

For National Memorial

Mackenzie King, Premier of Canada, visited the studio of the March family at Farnborough, Kent, England, to inspect the work in progress on the National War Memorial for Canada. arrangements to have him transferred.

One of the most gratifying features of his Australian tour, continued the speaker, was the really extraordinary enthusiasm shown by the Big Brothers. They seemed absolutely wrapped up in the progress of the movement, and many times the speaker had been stopped in the street on account of his badge, and made to read a long screed from some boy in happy employment on an Australian farm.

INCREASING DEMAND
The Masonic Lodges and Rotary Clubs of Australia are taking the matter up wholeheartedly, and there was a continual increase in the demand for Little Brothers. It had been proved over and over again, said Captain Thornton, that by far the most desirable immigrant was the boy of from fifteen to nineteen years of age, who was young enough to learn his job from the kick-off and to adapt himself to the conditions of the country of his adoption.

The meeting ended with an informal discussion among those present, in which Reeve, Proulx, said that he could answer for the popularity of the movement among the farmers of Saskatchewan. Captain Thornton was able to introduce the movement into Canada. Mr. R. D. Harvey, solicitor from Duncan, said that there were many very active farmers in the Cowichan district, and it was a pity that Captain Thornton would not have time to make a trip up the island, where he would be able to see for himself that there was plenty of room for the Little Brother.

Mr. B. C. Nicholas then moved that Mr. P. B. Fowler, president of the Executive, be authorized to form a committee of the chamber, which would hold itself in readiness to take the matter up, pending the results of Captain Thornton's visit to Ottawa.

Mr. A. Carmichael seconded Mr. Nicholas' motion and it was carried.

PREMIER WILL CURTAIL CALLS

Hon. S. F. Tolmie Intends to Devote Himself Next Month to Preparation for Session

Premier Tolmie, who, since taking over the duties connected with the office as head of the Government, has been most generous in meeting the wishes of all parties that could conveniently be reached in order to discuss with the people matters connected with the welfare of the province, has announced his intention of taking something of a respite from the calls that are being made upon him to attend gatherings. Commencing about the end of the present month he will cut out all the engagements except those of a very pressing character in order that he may give his entire time to preparing for the coming session of the Legislature.

"I think no one can say that I have not been very generous in the giving of time to meet the public," said the Premier, in apologizing for the decision to reserve more of his time for the preparation for the session. He points out that there are many things that have to be attended to before the House meets, and he intends to take his full share of the reaching of a decision in the matters, dividing with his colleagues the responsibility.

Mr. Anders is employed by the Home Oil Company, Vancouver, as a service expert. He is now visiting all points in British Columbia showing dealers how their business can be built up by giving more service to the public. Both moving pictures and slides will be used to illustrate his talk. The meeting will commence at 7:45 p.m.

SCHOOL CHILDREN FACING CALAMITY

Trustees Discuss Question of Barring Pupils From May 24 Celebration Parades

Settlement of the question whether school children should participate in the May 24 celebration parades was not reached by the School Board at its meeting last night. Trustee J. S. McMillan championed the cause of those who wished to see the children in parades. Arranged among them were the remainder of the school trustees and the municipal inspector, Mr. George Dean.

Inspector Dean pointed out that for two weeks prior to the celebration studies were disrupted by preparations. This activity came at a most unpropitious time, for it followed upon the Easter holidays and preceded the annual examinations for promotion.

The medical health officer had advised against the parades as detrimental to the health of the children, while teachers and parents were caused considerable anxiety. Trustees opposed to children in the parade quoted similar arguments.

Trustee McMillan said that the success of the parade depended upon the children, and as the occasion was a patriotic one, they should be asked to take part in it. The matter was deferred until the next regular meeting of the School Board, to be held the second Wednesday in December.

"Don't mind, Bobbie, don't mind," said a sympathetic little girl to her small brother, who had been chastized by her father. "I didn't," sobbed Bobbie. "That's why I got it—likened."

Acid Stomach Indigestion Dyspepsia Gastritis Stomach Ulcers

THE FOLLY OF NEGLECT

Stomach troubles are progressive. They seldom cure themselves, but instead constantly worsen. It is the worst of dangers to fall to after-dinner sleep, heartburn, etc., that in nearly every case are caused by "too much acid" in the stomach. These first symptoms may for a time be relieved by soda, which helps to neutralize the acid, or by opium pills, the sour, fermenting food, but they offer only a false security, and soon lose effect. The constant after-dinner distress becomes chronic dyspepsia. The dyspeptic is restless, nervous, and easily irritated, and ulcers in the stomach are only too often the forerunners of stomach cancer and death.

For this reason physicians place much importance upon keeping the stomach free from harmful excess acid. An ideal method of treatment is by the regular daily use of pure Bilexated Maltinase—either before or after meals—which takes after meals its formation and keeps the stomach clean, strong and healthy, and digestion perfect. And this alone can surely Bilexated Maltinase and stomach ulcers are advised to give it a trial. (Adv.)

THE PROTECTIVE TARIFF

All commentators with any knowledge of the situation are agreed that a tremendous element in favor of the Republicans' outstanding successes in the recent election in the United States were due to their tariff policies. This fact is emphasized again and again by various shades of opinion in the American press. The American people, because of the prosperity they have been enjoying, have elected a president who is an out and out protectionist, and in doing so they have consulted their economic interests. The reaction in this Dominion cannot fail to be in the direction of confirming the viewpoint held by Conservatives on fiscal policies. In the meantime, however, until a change of Government is brought about at Ottawa, this country is bound to continue to suffer because of unfair competition from American imports. In commenting on this aspect of the American election results The Montreal Gazette says:

"Mr. Hoover's election means also that the difficulties now confronting the Canadian producer in his efforts to trade with the United States are more likely to be increased than modified. The Canadian consumer will still have the privilege of buying in enormous volume American commodities which could be manufactured in this country, but there is not the smallest likelihood that Canadian products, other than raw materials, will find any easier access to the markets of the United States. The President-elect stands for a four-square policy of protection, and he is perfectly right in so doing, but the continued application of such a policy, upon even more rigid lines, can have no other effect than that of aggravating a trade condition which is highly detrimental to Canadian interests, as has been amply demonstrated in Canadian-American trade returns for a long period—and especially during the past two or three years. The platform upon which Mr. Hoover stood during the late campaign, after its adoption by the Republican convention in Kansas City, contained this tariff declaration: 'We reaffirm our belief in the protective tariff as a fundamental and essential principle of the economic life of this nation. While certain provisions of the present law require revision in the light of changes in the world competitive situation since their enactment, the record of the United States since 1922 clearly shows that the fundamental protective principle of the law has been fully justified. . . . Adherence to that policy is essential for the continued prosperity of the country.'"

THE CONSUMERS' LEAGUE

Mr. R. J. Deachman, of Ottawa, who appears to be the spokesman of the Consumers' League, has a quarrel with other newspapers as well as the Colonist. So absorbed is he with the task he has in view that he sees a personal enemy in any one who attacks the present Federal fiscal policies. An article recently appeared in The Toronto Mail and Empire urging that differences on the tariff question should be discussed on their merits and in regard to the interest of the public in the largest sense of the word. That article advocated that the tariff ought to be based on national and business considerations. It said that nowadays, when applications for tariff changes have to be made in the open and when issues raised by such applications can be argued, "there can be no excuse for the hurrying of such epithets as 'grafter,' 'robber,' 'extortioner' at producers who ask for an increase in the tariff." In effect the article in question was a plea for temperate and business-like discussion.

No mention was made of Mr. Deachman by The Toronto Mail and Empire, yet that advocate of the Consumers' League and lower tariffs immediately jumps into the breach and claims he has been accused of using the words "robber, grafter and extortioner" in discussing tariff matters before the Tariff Board. It is difficult always to follow the mentality which takes umbrage in this sense. There is a sensitivity that is inexplicable. The Mail and Empire explains that in the article noted Mr. Deachman never entered the mind of the writer, as indeed why should he, as his personal influence in tariff policies is simply and solely a matter of self appraisement. The trouble is that Mr. Deachman takes himself far too seriously and arrogates to himself an influence which no one else is aware he possesses. The Mail and Empire says: "Whether or not Mr. Deachman had been guilty of unfair or offensive criticism of protectionists or applicants for increases in the tariff the editorial did not indicate, and he had no occasion to put on the cap if he believed it did not fit him."

AN AGE OF LOQUACITY

The record of Herr Parlatius, of Berlin, who spoke—in a bership—for 120 hours on end is a reminder of the lengths to which loquacity can go. It is an exaggerated example of what is already an aggravating practice. If there is one goal at which education should aim it is the teaching of the language in such a manner that those taught will express their thoughts, such as they are, in straight-flung words and few. Interminable time would be saved if this became a universal practice. Tiredness and ennui are twin legacies of the human voice, the one of those who speak, and the other of those who have to listen. There is a sound argument in favor of not saying anything unless there is something to be said, for "the dice are loaded against long-windedness" and the triple hardships it inflicts of circumlocution, repetition and redundancy. At present a tiresome rule in a variety of circles, nurtured by clubs, societies, organizations and similar aggregations, is to say nothing and say it often. That is a rule, too, followed by politicians who lack either knowledge or imagination, and public and semi-public characters as a whole, with some notable exceptions, fall into the same maelstrom of vacuous loquacity.

It may be admitted that it is a waste of words to attempt to point out that there should be conservation of speech. The answer of those who talk too much and say too little is that there are also people who write at too great length without anything to relate, except words. There is this to be said, however, for writers, and that is that no one is under any particular compulsion to read what they write. On the other hand it is impossible to escape boring talk without exhibiting rudeness. There is still a large, sound and sane element in mankind which prefers its fellows to be brief; to be, as one critic put it, "short in the tongue and long in the ear."

A KNIGHT OF THE GARTER

Sport, not only in Britain but the world over, has been honored by the appointment by His Majesty the Earl of Londale, G.C.V.O., as a Knight of the Most Noble Order of the Garter. There is no sportsman better known or more popular than Lord Londale, on the occasion of his golden wedding, was presented on behalf of British sportsmen by the Prince of Wales with a gold equestrian and a large sum of money to be distributed in charity. The equestrian had eight panels illustrating Lord Londale's sporting activities, which include hunting, flat racing, steeplechasing, deer stalking, yachting, boxing and coursing. In the boxing world his name stands for all that is best in sport and he was the donor of the championship belt bearing his name. His elevation to the most exclusive order of chivalry is a recognition of the part which sport and sportsmanship play in the life of the British nation.

The Toronto Mail and Empire asks why is it that when a telephone operator asks what number has been called and then says, "there is some mistake," the onus is upon the subscriber to ring again? The mistake, the newspaper says, as likely as not, is not his and should be corrected without putting him to the inconvenience of repeating the call. Again, it asks, "when a subscriber is told that a certain number has been changed to another number, why should he not be immediately connected with the other number without further effort on his part?"

The chief attention of police is devoted to speed in motor traffic. Lord Montague of Beaulieu says that both the police and the Government should instead concentrate more attention on noise. For the noise which is proving so nerve-racking he does not blame automobiles altogether. The fault, too, he says, rests with street cars, motor cycles and other vehicles. There is no law, apparently, through which police govern noise. Even the use of cut-outs and all kinds of motor horns is permitted with impunity.

HEALING

"I walked through the woods at dusk.
And the stillness seemed a sword
That pierced my empty heart.
And the white flowers under the trees
Spelt beauty that was pain.
Then a soft and shining shower
Fell on the blossoming trees
With tender little sounds
As a mother greets her babe,
And to my aching heart
Brought swift and secret healing."

"If I keep still, beloved,
You will know, where'er you are,
That now they are tears of joy—
That the winter of grief is past,
And the springing of life the flowers.
The song of the falling rain,
Have brought you again to me."

"I am no longer alone
You walk through the woods with me.
The stillness no longer a sword,
But a shield that guards us from ill,
And you and the beauty are one."

—Hilda Trevelyan-Thomson, in The Lady.

NOISE AND SILENCE

"Noise is an anarchist who slaughters calm,
And his explosives wreck all rest and peace;
Silence, his gentle sister, with soft palm,
Comes in his wake, and brings broken surcease."

—William Hamilton Hayne, in Scribner's Magazine.

This is a new cycle of human power. All the horizons of the world are luminous, and the world will become indeed as a garden and a paradise. It is the hour of unity of the sons of men and of the drawing together of all races and all classes.—Abdul Baha.

Note and Comment

By R. B. D.

They say Herbert Hoover is no politician. They will be saying many things about Herbert Hoover during the next few years. If we were disposed to be impertinent and to say things possibly we should not say, we might say that for a man who is not a politician, Herbert Hoover has accomplished one thing thousands of men who are politicians would be delighted in having accomplished—for he has achieved a grand and glorious political victory for his political party. Without saying very much, Herbert Hoover has gained the presidency of the United States, and his friends say that is the most important and the most influential position in the world. Herbert Hoover did not make nearly so many political speeches as Al. Smith, and yet he will be a power on the earth for at least four years, and possibly for eight years, whereas Al. Smith has renounced all political ambition and says he will become a private citizen.

When we think of the number of speeches Dr. Toimie has made since he became Premier of British Columbia, and at that probably not half as many speeches as he has been asked to make, we are lost in astonishment at the number of speeches Herbert Hoover might make if he were a talkative politician. But Herbert Hoover seems to be almost as economical of words as Calvin Coolidge. It may be that in order to avoid the possibility of being asked to make speeches Herbert Hoover is going to take a long vacation far away from home. He is going to South America. He has not said what he is going there for, but if he will not talk his friends the newspaper men are quite ready to talk for him. So the newspaper men say Herbert is going to South America for the purpose of carrying a message of goodwill to the people of South America. The newspaper men say more than that. They say Herbert Hoover is bubbling over with goodwill for everybody.

But the newspaper men of Canada have been saying some things about Mr. Hoover which seem to them to be a relief. It is Mr. Hoover who pays a visit to this part of North America and tell the people here that he is bubbling over with goodwill towards them. Mr. Hoover will not do that. He will not say a thing of interest to Canadians until the time comes for him to deliver his first message to the Congress of the United States. What Mr. Hoover has to say in that message will be of absorbing interest to Canadians. It will be of special interest to R. H. William Lyon Mackenzie King, whom his political friends and supporters consider the chief of Canadians. A considerable number of Canadians besides R. H. William Lyon Mackenzie King are worrying about what Mr. Hoover will say in his first message to Congress. There probably is no reason whatever for anybody, whether Canadian or American, to worry about that; for, whatever Mr. Hoover has to say, there will be no change in the political relations between the people of Canada at large and the people of the United States at large. Anything that Mr. Hoover may suggest to Congress in his message will be in the interest of the people of the United States. Anything that Canadians may be compelled to do as a result of that message will be in the interest of Canadians—at least we hope so.

One would think "after reading political speeches that elections should breed illwill rather than goodwill; but Al. Smith, who was decisively beaten by Herbert Hoover, says he entertains no ill-feeling towards his victorious rival. In fact, immediately Mr. Smith was convinced he was beaten he addressed a message of goodwill to Mr. Hoover and to all the politicians who had voted against him. He said he hoped the United States would continue to prosper under the rule of a Republican administration. Mr. Hoover's friends say the result of the great victory has so affected his heart that he will work for peace and goodwill throughout the whole world.

Such is the result of the elections upon the "sentiments of the politicians of the United States. Now consider the result of the late provincial elections upon the sentiments of some of the politicians of British Columbia. Mr. Manson, the late Attorney-General, has been addressing the Liberals of Vancouver, possibly hoping that some day they will become his constituents. Mr. Manson was regarded by some people, or perhaps we should say by some politicians, as a rather bitter partisan. But there was not even a tinge of bitterness in his speech, the first he has delivered since the defeat of the Government. Mr. Manson neither criticised nor cursed the Toimie Government. We read his speech, and the effect of reading it was that we could almost see Mr. Manson, with arms spread and outstretched, invoking a blessing upon the present Government. If he did not invoke a blessing upon the Government, he said he would co-operate in making the administration of the Government a complete success. In saying that Mr. Manson said a good deal, for it is said that he may be the new leader of the Liberal Opposition in the Legislature, although Mr. Patullo may also have something to say about that. Can it be possible that a political millennium is about to dawn upon this great continent?

POLICE DUTIES

Sir,—Your excellent article on above subject is well worthy of note. The seal of a police officer to make mass often outruns sound judgment. There are many phases to this question. Honest work and a kindly, silent manner are two of the best things a policeman can study to make his own. Some time ago the writer sat quietly sewing when a knock at the front door called her. A woman, who asked the astounding question: "Had she a man lodging here?" An answer in the negative brought the further question: "Are there any more small houses up this street?" We do not know who this woman was; we are left to surmise as to whether she was a woman police officer or not. One, however, heaves a sigh as they regard that our new Attorney-General cannot also be head of our city police commission. If so, our policemen would soon be stepping into a neat uniform as befits their profession, or stepping out of office.

I believe in Victoria we are indebted to the efforts of the Local Council of Women for the coming of the policeman. As an honest, womanly soul bent on improving society she can do great good, but a stool pigeon she can work exceeding great harm in a community.

MOTOR-CYCLE HILL CLIMB

Sir,—On behalf of the Victoria Motor-Cycle Club I wish to thank through the medium of the press, the many who assisted in making the motor-cycle hill climb at Mt. Douglas on Thanksgiving Day such a success. Among others I wish to thank the Saanich-Victoria Parks and Beaches Committee and the Saanich police for their co-operation. The Vancouver Island Coach and Stage Lines for running special buses; the photographers and the press for their generous publicity. The club is not less than grateful to the public who turned out in excellent force to witness such an unusual sporting event.

I am sure that the public derived a great amount of enjoyment from the wonderful display of riding that the boys gave. Special praise goes to the competitors, members and officials of the club, who worked extra hard this year in putting it over in such a manner as they did, and expect an even larger crowd at the next annual climb in 1929.

PRICES AND BREEDS OF GOATS

Sir,—When I find a number of people who keep domestic goats complain that the cost of keeping the animals is too great, I want to know the reason why. I put the blame on the Agricultural Department for introducing the "Scrub Goat Act." To put it concisely, the goat breeders got together a few goats from a foreign source, partly subsidized by the Government, and raised a foundation stock, registered the goats as the only goats available for stud purposes, and charged abnormal prices for breeding. They had the advantage for few people care to be troubled with a billy goat, or knew anything about it. A case I came across recently in Victoria, the owner of a domestic goat was supplying two sick children with milk. Wishing to breed the goat he was charged $15 and there was no other means within reach. Even, according to the regulations, he was charged, I consider them unusually high as compared with other countries. I keep two of the best pedigree stud goats registered according to the act, and charge $2 for breeding. But for use in my own herd, I keep a scrub goat on whose strength and virility I have confidence. My object is to raise animals suitable to a rough country, and not a city bred prize stock.

Some years ago an Italian nix goat from me, on which he told me later he raised six husky children, a scrub goat at that. Later he brought a kid for $5 from me and it turned out a gallon milk, also a scrub. He said in his own country there they are more dependent on goat milk than elsewhere, they do not go by the highly-bred goats, and one in a hundred kids might turn out a gallon milk, and was looked upon as "an act of Providence."

So much for the scrub goat. Mr. Burton, with his scientific knowledge and financially successful prize-bred goats, is a different matter. He landed in Victoria, bought a single nix goat from me, on which he told me later he raised six husky children, a scrub goat at that. Later he brought a kid for $5 from me and it turned out a gallon milk, also a scrub. He said in his own country there they are more dependent on goat milk than elsewhere, they do not go by the highly-bred goats, and one in a hundred kids might turn out a gallon milk, and was looked upon as "an act of Providence."

stock, aided by the Scrub Goat Act, will probably be able to hold his own. But that is not what the ordinary owner of a scrub goat (usually the pet of the family) is looking for. He wants cheap milk for his family, and the scrub goat gives him all he wants, and often, like the owner, has to rustle for a living.

Recently I had three goats brought to me, salmon milkers, and of the scrub type, the smallest goats I have ever seen. They were well up to the standard type Mr. Burton so ably describes. The breeding of these goats in former years had been $5 each. The owner, a poor man, was for giving them up, as the cost of breeding was more than he could afford. So much for the "phenomenal development" of the goat industry.

No such act as the Scrub Goat Act is made to apply to other animals in the Department of Agriculture. Why should it be applied to the goat? If a man wants to raise a scrub goat, why should he not be permitted to do so in a free country, without the domination of a Goat Breeders' Association, which appears to have made a corner in goats?

Mr. Burton may pride himself as having a stock of very ancient lineage from Switzerland, and prize-taking qualities at the circle of sheep, to which these goats are systematically carried, at some risk to the owner. But he is not wise to try and plant that stock upon the scattered owners of goats on Vancouver Island, who at the present time are being held up by the excessive stud fees, with no remedy in sight.

BLOTS ON VICTORIA'S BEAUTY

Sir,—It is to be hoped that at the forthcoming municipal elections men will be chosen for mayor and aldermen who are known to have some fitness for office.

This term "fitness for office" is rather vague and very wide. A man may be a genius at juggling the figures of the municipal finance and taxation and know nothing at all about fire protection, education, police, sanitation or any of the other matters that come under the attention of the City Council. One of these other matters is an appreciation of the natural beauties of Victoria and a determination to preserve them, and do nothing to mar them.

At present there are four glaring instances of neglect of this duty by previous city councils. The neglect causes offence to our eyes, our ears and our noses.

The first blot is the Johnson Street bridge. It would have been quite easy to design it so that its angles and straight lines would have been avoided. It is too late now to correct this, but probably some day the bridge will have to be painted. One needs to think what color the council will choose after its recent fiasco on the city hall. No worse color than the present sickly yellow could have been chosen.

The second blot offends our eyes. The stretch along the causeway of the nose and is hardly a well-kept to the hundreds of strangers who come to pass that way when arriving by boat.

The blot that offends our ears is a noise that issues every fifteen minutes from the lower of the Presbyterian Church on Douglas Street. Victoria prides itself on having a reputation for knowing something about music, and yet the City Council, heedless of this, allows this discordant jangle to continue.

These last two blots are easily remedied. So let us vote for men who will put their shoulders to the wheel and do it.

Demand Cash Withdrawals Limit Raised

Patrons of the Postoffice Savings Bank will be interested to learn that the Postoffice Department has given authority to increase the limit for demand cash withdrawals from savings accounts from $25.00 to $50.00 in one day.

This means that henceforward a depositor will be permitted to withdraw in cash on demand any amount up to $50.00 on any one day by presenting his passbook at any Savings Bank Postoffice in Canada, identifying himself satisfactorily to the postmaster, giving a receipt and having the payment duly entered in his passbook.

Hitherto it has been necessary to obtain authority from Ottawa for withdrawals of more than $25.00, and the new arrangement will obviate the delays which, occurred under the old system.

An Indiana physician of standing had completed his testimony as an expert witness and was exulting with the recollection of having "handed a few warm ones" to the questioner of the other great American profession, the law.

"Say, man, give me five minutes and I can make a fool out of any lawyer," he remarked gloatingly to U. S. Leeb, formerly Attorney-General of Indiana, and a man of ordinarily humble mien.

"Would that be on the theory of contagion?" inquired Leeb, meekly, bringing the conversation to a abrupt end.

GIRL ON TRIAL FOR DEATH OF INFANT CHILD

Three Crown Witnesses Heard in Case of Lydia Rosman, Charged With Murdering Her Babe

HEARING WILL RESUME TODAY

The trial of Lydia Catharine Rosman, young half-breed Indian domestic of Salt Spring Island, on a charge of murdering her infant child at Ganges in April last, opened yesterday afternoon before Mr. Justice W. A. Macdonald and jury at the Criminal Assizes at the Court House here. Three witnesses for the Crown gave testimony, and the hearing was adjourned until this morning at 10:30 o'clock. Mr. A. M. Johnson, K.C., is Crown prosecutor, and Mr. M. B. Jackson, K.C., is counsel for the accused.

Lydia Rosman, who pleaded not guilty to the murder indictment, sat in the prisoner's dock trembling and crying throughout the proceedings. Tears streamed down her cheeks, and she kept her head bowed most of the time. She was attired in black apparel, and the large hat which she wore hid her face from the large gallery of spectators, many of whom were women.

Following adjournment of the case at 5:30 p.m. yesterday, the juryman trying the accused was taken out to supper and later to a local hotel, where they were confined for the night.

THE CROWN'S CASE

Briefly outlining the Crown's case to the jury, Mr. A. M. Johnson, K.C., Crown prosecutor, said evidence would be presented to show that the accused was a general servant in the house of Mrs. Osenham, at Ganges, Salt Spring Island; that she had been employed there for over a year, and that on April 10, 1928, she was given a holiday. She returned to work on April 23, and the next day complained of being unwell and went to her mother's home. The Crown would show that Mrs. Osenham, on April 30, entered the sleeping quarters formerly occupied by the accused, and there found in some soiled bed linen what appeared to be the body of a newly-born child. A doctor examined the body, an inquest was held, followed by a preliminary hearing of a charge of murder against the accused, and she was committed for trial. Mr. Johnson said the Crown had to prove that there was a dead body of a child, and that the accused was responsible for the child's death.

Mrs. Kathleen F. Osenham, principal of a boys' boarding school at Ganges, was the first witness called by the Crown. She said the accused had been a maid servant at her place for a year and seven months, and had slept in a small bedroom on the ground floor of her premises. The accused left for a holiday on April 24 or 25.

"I thought Lydia was not well enough to stay when she came back, and I sent her home to her mother," she said. "I tried to get a doctor for her, but was unable to get one, and with the doctor," witness testified.

BODY OF CHILD

Witness said she went into the accused's room a week later to get the bedding for the laundry. No one had occupied the room since the accused had gone away. Witness said she pulled out some sheets from under the bed, and a baby's body fell out of the bedding. "I touched the body, and it felt cold. I telephoned for a doctor."

Asked by Mr. Jackson regarding the accused's character, Mrs. Osenham said she couldn't speak too highly of Lydia Rosman. Lydia was the most faithful girl that had ever been in her employ, being of a gentle, affectionate disposition, she around the premises. The accused was "not very bright, but rather a simple girl."

The second witness, Constable Daniel Oliver, Tweedhope, of the British Columbia Provincial Police, stationed at Ganges, told of going to the Osenham home on April 30. He entered a room off the kitchen on the ground floor of the premises, which contained a bed cot, several pieces of furniture, a quantity of magazines and some women's wearing apparel. Witness said he picked up a parcel lying on a small bureau, and on unwrapping it found the body of a male child.

Mr. Johnson—"What was the condition of the child?"

Tweedhope—"It was dead."

"Did you notice anything peculiar about the body?"

"CORD AROUND NECK"

Witness—"I noticed a piece of black cord tied around the child's neck."

Tweedhope identified a piece of black cord entered a court exhibit as the same article which he saw around the child's neck.

Witness said he removed the body to the morgue at Ganges, went to the hospital, and drove Coroner Collins and Dr. Sutherland from the hospital to the Rosman home on North Salt Spring Island. He said he saw the accused in her bedroom the same night. Dr. Sutherland was in the room with the accused. He subsequently arrested the accused.

Mr. Johnson—"How was the cord on the child's body when you saw it at the Osenham home?"

"It was tied very tightly around the child's neck, the bow being at the back of the neck."

"VERY HYSTERICAL"

Under cross-examination, Constable Tweedhope said he was at the Rosman home about half an hour before going to the room where the accused was. He stated that when he entered the room the accused was lying in bed, and was in a very hysterical condition.

Dr. Eva Maud Sutherland, a medical practitioner at Salt Spring Island, the third witness, was on the stand for over two hours. She said she had been practicing for twenty-five years, the last ten years being at Salt Spring Island. On Monday, April 30, she received a call to go to

Mrs. Osenham's house. She went there, and found the body of a male infant lying on a pile of clothes in the sleeping quarters of Mrs. Osenham's help. The body was lying face downwards on some clothing at the head of the bed. Witness said she was satisfied that the child was dead, and reported to the coroner. She said she noticed a velvet ribbon around the child's neck.

Witness said she left the house, and later went to the hospital and then to the Rosman home with Coroner Collins and Constable Tweedhope. She said she saw the accused at her own home, resting on a bed.

Mr. Johnson asked witness if she had had any conversation with the accused on that occasion.

OBJECTION RAISED

Mr. Jackson raised strong objection to the introduction of evidence on this point, and his lordship requested the jury to retire, while argument by counsel was heard.

Mr. Jackson claimed that all who were present at the arrest, detention, prosecution or examination of a prisoner are considered as persons of such authority that their inducements would be excluded by the law. He contended that Dr. Sutherland went to the Rosman home on behalf of the police, and was therefore one in authority, and that the evidence should not be allowed.

"She was there under escort of the police, and was thus a part of the police. She went to aid the prosecution, and I submit, would be grossly unfair to put these questions and answers regarding any conversation that may have been had, in as evidence in this trial," Mr. Jackson said.

Mr. Johnson held that the doctor was not a person of authority on the stand, and that the Rosman home was there no suspicion of crime, when Dr. Sutherland went to the Rosman home. The accused was a patient, and anything the patient said at the time was admissible. The accused was not a prisoner, nor was she in custody.

His lordship said that if it was shown that the doctor was taken to the accused, he would not admit the evidence of a conversation.

CONSTABLE RECALLED

Crown counsel recalled Constable Tweedhope to the stand. Tweedhope said he drove the coroner and Dr. Sutherland to the Rosman home from the hospital, a drive of twenty-five minutes.

"Why did you ask the doctor to go there?"

"I didn't. It was apparently arranged between the coroner and the doctor."

"Did you speak to the doctor on the way about the case?"

"No."

"Had you any reason to suspect Lydia Rosman of a crime?"

"I thought something was wrong," Dr. Sutherland, resuming the witness stand, said the coroner had asked her to go to the Rosman home to examine the accused and see if she had recently delivered a child. He had been asked to examine her, and I asked her to tell her mother why I was there. In response to my request she told her mother."

His lordship said he would reserve his decision on the objection raised by defence counsel.

The jury was brought into the courtroom at this stage, and the case proceeded.

CAUSE OF DEATH

Dr. Sutherland told of seeing Lydia Rosman at 7 p.m. on August 1, and upon examining her had found that she had recently delivered a child. She later performed a post-mortem on the body of the child. The body was that of an infant male, very well developed and fully matured, weighing eight pounds.

Mr. Johnson—"What was the cause of the child's death?"

"It was asphyxiation, that is, suffocation, being caused by the obstruction of air entering its lungs."

Witness said the child, in her opinion, had breathed at birth. She was satisfied that the child had breathed, but was unable to say how long the child had breathed. There was a groove an inch thick around the child's neck.

Cross-examined by Mr. Jackson, Dr. Sutherland said the child's body was wrapped in an apron when he saw it first. There were no signs on the body which would indicate that there had been any violence. She said she didn't find any finger marks or bruises on the body. Asphyxiation might be caused a dozen different ways.

Mr. Jackson—"A child might die of asphyxiation from incomplete breathing?"

"Yes," answered witness.

"Is not a male child more likely to die of asphyxiation than a female one?"

"Yes."

"The first child of a mother is more prone to die of asphyxiation than any other?"

"Yes."

STILL ON STAND

Dr. Sutherland was still on the stand when the court adjourned, and Mr. Jackson will continue with his cross-examination of witness.

when the trial resumed this morning at 10:30 o'clock.

When the Rex vs. Rosman case opened yesterday afternoon, Mr. Jackson made a motion that the indictment be set aside on the grounds that the grand jury, which had returned a true bill against the accused, was not properly constituted. Mr. Jackson, stating his objection, pointed out that two persons summoned as grand jurors had been exempted after appearing in court. One was a man who sought exemption from serving on the grounds of being over the age of sixty years. The other was a woman who was also excused by His Lordship, although she was willing to serve, he said.

"If the two dismissed jurors were not qualified to serve, they were never on the list, and therefore there never was a list of thirteen jurors for this assizes," Mr. Jackson claimed.

OBJECTION OVERULED

His lordship overruled the objection, stating that he considered the course he had pursued in regard to the grand jury as the proper one, and in the interests of justice, and he quoted legal authority to support his ruling.

The juror who was excused was over age, Mr. Justice Macdonald said. Had the man ignored the summons to appear he would have been within his rights. The lady excused was over seventy years of age, although she was frail and appeared to be deaf, she showed a commendable spirit in not seeking exemption, but he believed it would not have been in the interests of justice to support her contention that the time is passing when technicalities should interfere with the administration of justice.

The petit jury which is trying Lydia Rosman on the murder charge is composed of the following: Mr. A. R. Nex (foreman), Messrs. Henry G. Hill, Percival E. George, Frederick Neaves, James Stirling, Robert Cleasby, Herbert Mercer, William Henry Duckworth, Allan D. Ballantyne, Henry H. Brown, Leonard Wilson Noble and George Samuel Lowe.

WIDELY-KNOWN PIONEER DIES

MR. SETH CHAMBERLAIN, AGED SEVENTY-FOUR, HAD WIDE CIRCLE OF FRIENDS

Came Here From New Hampshire Prior to Gold Rush—Was Hotel Proprietor

Mr. Seth Lewis Chamberlain, well-known pioneer of Victoria, died at the Royal Jubilee Hospital at 9 o'clock last night. Mr. Chamberlain had a wide circle of friends, having come to this city in 1867, when remnants of the old fort were still visible, and Government Street, the main street at that time, was but a windy, muddy, wagon road.

For many years he was a hotel proprietor of this city, establishing himself in the hotel and catering business during the Klondike gold rush. He formerly owned the old Vernon Hotel, on the corner of Douglas and View Streets, which is now known as the Woodworth Block. He was born in Bath, New Hampshire, in 1855 and came across the Continent to Victoria when but a young man. At his death he was seventy-four years of age.

Besides a host of friends he leaves to mourn him his widow and one son, Mr. Herbert Chamberlain, a San Francisco attorney, who returned home when it was reported that his father was dangerously ill.

The remains have been taken to the Sands Funeral Parlor. The date of the funeral will be announced later.

Fashion Fancies

By Marie Belmont

There is no doubt about it. Tulle certainly is a leader in the evening materials. And certainly it lends itself to most becoming lines.

Illustrated above is a dinner gown of tulle showing the new square cut neckline. The skirt of the model is also important, dipping up in the front and being attached to the very low blouse in points.

The flower at the shoulder is fashioned entirely of tulle petals and is flatteringly soft.

Langford Children Enjoy Parties

A delightful children's fancy dress party was given at Langford Lake-side on Saturday evening by Mrs. H. C. C. Bennett in honor of her daughter Cecily's birthday. The hall was attractively draped with orange bunting, Chinese lanterns and fancy lights.

Dancing and games were enjoyed. Prizes were won by Eileen Hincks for balloon dancing and by Margaret Medley for musical chairs. A delicious supper was served on small tables. The guests all wore fancy dresses and included: Betty and Margaret Medley, Dorothy Ford, Georgina and Betty Cooney, Stella Hincks, Eileen Hincks, John Pennington, Keith Brown, Campbell Brown, Ronald McCrimmon, John Meredith-Jones, Kenneth Hincks, Dean Johnston, Cecily, Pamela and Henry Bennett.

Mrs. R. Brotherton, Millstream Road, entertained at a children's party recently in honor of her daughter Betty's seventh birthday. The little guests were: Frances Wale, Georgina, Betty and Patty Cooney, Eileen and Claude Hincks, Phyllis and Doreen Lock, Molly Wilson, Glenys Smedley, Olive Cockerton, Kathleen and Victoria Willson, Joan Turner, Billy Ord, Rex Jackson, Rodney Bayles, Margaret, Betty and Donny Brotherton.

LON CHANEY IN DETECTIVE ROLE

"Man of a Thousand Faces" Seen as Plainclothes Man in Dominion's Feature

Lon Chaney, whose roles usually are those of menace, has a new angle on sinister portrayals in his latest and one of his most sensational screen plays, "While the City Sleeps," now showing at the Dominion Theatre. Never was he as deadly menacing as in some of its scenes, still in these more than any other his audience is with him. For he is menacing this time to those who lurk in sinister shadows and themselves menace others.

Chaney plays a plainclothes detective in a vivid story of the "inside" of the New York police, and a deadly gang war in the background of the stirring story. A pretty love tale is woven through it.

Chaney rounds up desperate crooks in thrilling machine gun battles, a sensational street chase, a battle on the roofs of a city, and intimate details of secrets of the Tomb—the "shadow box," dreamed by criminals, and other "closeups" of police practice are shown.

It is a marvelous detective story, set as a background to love in the underworld, and is enacted by a notable cast. A. P. Younger, of "Brown of Harvard" and "Twelve Miles Out" fame, wrote the play, which Jack Conway directed.

AUTHENTIC SCENES IN DIX NEW FILM

"Moran of the Marines" on Capitol Screens Includes Views of San Diego

Richard Dix and a troupe of ninety from the Paramount studio in Hollywood were "on location" at the Marine Base, San Diego, for a week, where scenes for his latest Paramount picture, "Moran of the Marines," now at the Capitol, were made.

Permission to use the Base was received after negotiations with the heads of the Corps at Washington, D.C. Following a telegram received from Brigadier-General B. H. Fuller, Acting-Commandant of the United States Marine Corps, the troupe set out for the location.

Richard Dix has Ruth Elder, the famous aviatrix, as his leading lady in this picture. It marks her first professional appearance on the screen. Others in the cast include Roscoe Karns, Capt. E. H. Calvert, Brooks Benedict and Duke Martin.

The story is an original one for the screen, written by Linton Wells, well-known journalist, and globe-trotter Frank Strayer directed the production.

The stage presentations offer Lucille Enderly, the noted female baritone, the Desleys Sisters, dancers and vocalists, and Betty Anderson, the ever-popular soprano soloist, in song selections. This week also marks the farewell week of Harold Bechtel, the singing M.C.

PLAYHOUSE "Lady Windermere's Fan," the Ernst Lubitsch production for Warner Bros. now showing at the Playhouse Theatre with one of the most brilliant casts of the season, is proof that Lubitsch can make the famous epigrams of Oscar Wilde sparkle in terms of screen action. Irene Rich, a beautiful, new, sophis-

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's adaptation of the famous stage play, now showing at the Coliseum Theatre. It is a broad comedy of love and trouble over stolen babies, with the two heroes of "Rookies" in a series of hilarious mishaps. Robert Z. Leonard directed the picture. Charlotte Greenwood, elongated stage comedienne of "So Long Letty" and other famous shows, makes her debut on the screen in "Baby Mine," Metro-
Goldwyn-Mayer's filmization.

Taking Law to Lawless Is Theme
Of Maynard Film

"Code of the Scarlet," Ken Maynard's latest Western feature now playing at the Columbia Theatre, tops anything this popular dare-devil has ever done before. In the way of action, speed and dramatic appeal, Ken has won a large and faithful following among screen fans, through his efforts to give everything he has to every picture, and "Code of the Scarlet" will not only maintain his reputation, but win him many new followers. The action is laid in the Canadian Northwest, with Ken playing the part of a Royal Northwest Mounted Policeman, sent to a new and lawless region to maintain law and order. The story, it is said, has an unusual twist for plots of this kind.

Gordon McLeod's English Troupe Opens At Royal Monday

Since local theatregoers will see Miss Elizabeth's Prisoner" exactly as it was presented to Montreal and Toronto audiences, the opinions of critics in these cities will also apply to its coming engagement here. The play, a celebrated English costume comedy now being seen in Victoria for the first time, marks the initial appearance at the head of his own company of the brilliant young star
Gordon McLeod, who took Sir John
Martin-Harvey's role in "Saramouche" during the actor-knight's illness last season. It comes to the Royal on Monday, November 19, for three performances. "Rare flavor in thrills, surprises and amusing situations" was the comment of The Toronto Globe, which went on to say that the tenacious of the former was relieved by the "storms of laughter" which were the result of the latter. "Miss Elizabeth's Prisoner" will be seen on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday evenings only.
For the balance of the week Mr.
McLeod and his company will present Clemence Dane's powerful drama of a weird domestic problem,
"A Bill of Divorcement." It is the play in which Mr. McLeod started for sixty-two consecutive weeks.

Agreement Effected for Sherritt-Gordon Railway

TORONTO, Nov. 14.—A special dispatch to The Mail and Empire
from Ottawa says:

"By an agreement just effected
with the promoters of the Sherritt-Gordon mine in Manitoba, the Canadian National Railways will build a branch railway into the property from the line recently completed to the Flin Flon property. The agreement is similar to that with the Flin Flon promoters made a year ago, and which resulted in the construction of eighty-five miles of railway in record time.

"Under the arrangement with the Sherritt-Gordon promoters a cash guarantee of $1,500,000 has been given by them to the Canadian National Railways together with a cash bonus of $125,000 for the quick construction of the railway, which will leave the recently completed Flin Flon line at Mileage 51, and proceed forty-two miles in a northwesterly direction."

Foot Specialist Opens New Office

Owing to an increase in business, H. Crocker, foot specialist, of 1190 Port Street, has opened an office in the 4th floor, 1112 Government Street, where he will be pleased to give free examination to anyone suffering from foot trouble. Mr. Crocker, having been a sufferer for many years with foot trouble, decided to take up this work, and has had wonderful success in relieving some of the most obstinate cases in Victoria. His guarantee has always been: "If not satisfied, money returned." Although having been in business in Victoria for ten years, he has not often so dissatisfied patient, and has many testimonials.

CONCERT ARRANGED

On Friday evening at 8 o'clock, Mr. William Hansen will stage a concert at the Aged Men's Home. A first class collection of local talent has been secured, and there is every reason to believe that the concert will be an outstanding success.

"BARBERRY BUSH"

One Girl's Marriage Problems
 By KATHLEEN NORRIS

In October and November, two years after Barbara's marriage, there were exactly forty-three days of hard rain. Barbara counted them, desperately, doggedly, stoically.

Her household was late in getting started every morning, partly because little Kate, was a croupy baby and often kept her parents awake until midnight, partly because the mornings were so dark and dreary that there was no special incentive to rising.

Barry slept alone in the large, damp, plaster-scented room next to the kitchen now, and Barbara and the baby shared the big couch in the kitchen itself. No need, Barbara decided, to have both Barry and herself constantly disturbed by the little third member of the family. The kitchen was the only warm place in the house, and little bottles, blankets and garments could be dried and warmed there most easily.

Sometimes Kate slept in her basket, so close to the couch that her mother's hand could touch her arm from the bed. Sometimes, as she grew bigger and stronger, she was fanned into the corner with pillows, and spread herself like a little starfish on the bed.

Either way, Barbara liked to know that a matter of inches, and not walls and door, separated her from her child.

Often the hands of the kitchen clock stood close to nine o'clock when she awakened, and stumbled up, in fatigue and sleepiness and chill, to set the machinery of the household in motion. The room would be scented with stale ashes, and very cold, even in October.

ing of beans or prunes and delaying once more to attend to it, feeding the fire, rushing out into the blowing rain and wind to give the chickens their hot breakfast, stopping there to clean a water dish or gather a few warm brown eggs, and returning breathless to the kitchen to find Kate whimpering aggressively in her home-made high chair and the deserted dishes cooling and half done on the sink. Then she must clear the way for lunch. The kitchen was in fair order now, each neat, washing out of the way, sink cleared. But lunch would spread disorder again.

At the best of times, feeding Barry was a problem, for a part of his unreasonable and inconstant tendency was displayed in his impatience with monotonous or limited bills of fare, and yet he would neither encourage Barbara to experiment with her own original ideas in the matter, nor recognize the fact that their extremely uncertain financial standing was the real trouble after all.

Weeks ago they had sold to Tomas their cows, all except the one for which Barbara now cared in their own barn. Kate was the least exacting of babies, but she had to have her first boots and first coat after all; some money, not much, was owing to Maria Bettan court and her mother for nursing and housework during Kate's first weeks of life, and there was a modest doctor's bill still owing to Dr. Bonner.

What could they do? Barbara asked herself desperately over and over. Money was needed every day, at the time; nobody in the world could get along without a little money.

With Kate and with the old hacienda to manage and Barry's meals to cook, with the cow and chickens to keep, she could not possibly go back to Cottonwood and to her old job. Barry said comfortingly that he would sell a couple of poems, and he did sell one or two, modestly. But the return from these was less than fifty dollars, and three persons could not expect that to last long.

Patience was the only thing now, and Barbara strove for it with more steadfast, determined courage than she had brought to any previous crisis in her life. But it was hard to have Barry so cross, so bitter and hopeless. He seemed bewildered and overwhelmed by the increasing responsibilities he had assumed, and it was galling to Barbara to realize, far more clearly than he did, that at present she was far more of a liability than an asset. Her cheerfulness fell flat, her bright, confident dreams of their future life deepened the annoyed and impatient cloud on his face, and his despondency increased day by day.

One evening in early November he came in late for supper, but showed an unusually joyful and contented mood that Barbara knew it must have some definite explanation, that the change had never been caused by one of his long walks on the cliffs.

It appeared that he had gone into town, walking the highway at first, later been given a lift by a kindly tourist. He had seen old friends, and even stopped in for a little while at the moving-picture theatre; he had had a late lunch with the Wilsons. Ines was not well, and every one said Dr. Bonner had sent for Ward Duffy to ask him to come share his practice with him, and that in that case Ward and Amy would of course live in Cottonwood. And, finally, Barry had had another lift all the way home.

Barbara was delighted and excited by the unexpected event. She cross-examined him about everything and everybody, and exclaimed joyously a hundred times about the rumor that concerned Amy. Think of having Amy and Ward back! It seemed to promise better things somehow. Barry was happier, that the Wilsons had been so hospitable, that there was no immediate talk of a marriage between Marianne and Link, and that, above all, darling Amy might be back here in Cottonwood, where Barbara might often go to spend the day with her.

"And, Barry, we could have Amy down here for a real visit in the Summer! Imagine that, I haven't seen her since before her wedding. And that was almost two years ago. 'Sure we will,' Barry conceded graciously. Barbara had waited to share her supper with him, and his long drive had made it seem a delicious supper. Now, in lamplight, her satiny cheeks were blazing, her shining bronze hair loosened and her dark blue apron set off her white skin and high color to perfection. "I wish you always looked as pretty as you do at dinner," he said significantly. But his face clouded as a resentful expression came into her eyes.

"Cleaning up and washing for Kate," she countered, displeased, feeding chickens and raking out the barn." "Oh, for the Lord's sake, fight about everything!" Barry said viciously, jerking away from the table and from the fingers she instantly extended.

WILL ENTERTAIN PREMIER TONIGHT AT HAMPTON HALL

The Conservatives of Ward Seven, Saanich, will entertain Premier Tominer at a reception which is to be accorded him this evening in the Hampton Hall, Burnside Road. This will open at 8 o'clock, and is planned specially to afford the opportunity to allow the residents the chance to meet the Premier.

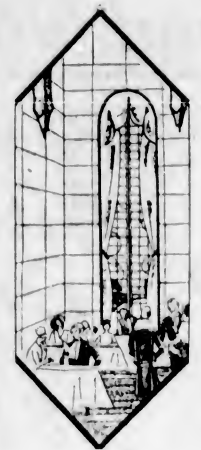

There will be a programme of music, with a short speech by the Premier, after which refreshments will be served, followed by a dance.

Equimult Voters Meeting Tomorrow To Elect Officers

The Equimult Municipal Voters' Association will hold its annual meeting in the Parish Hall on Friday evening at 7:45 o'clock. The business will include an extraordinary resolution re changing of the association name. Officers will be elected for the coming year. Mrs. C. H. Smith is arranging a musical programme and refreshments will be served by members of the executive committee.

The subject was extremely interesting and was greatly enjoyed by a large audience of club members, who are particularly fortunate in having a president who at all times is willing and able to fill a gap at short notice. A musical programme of special merit was sustained by Mrs. John Kyle and Mr. Guy, who sang two numbers each, also by Master Richard Eaton, chorboy of Christ Church Cathedral, whose lovely voice was much appreciated in two Scottish songs, "Flow Gently Sweet Afton" and "My Love Is But a Lassie Yet." A number of new members were proposed, the allotted membership of five hundred being nearly completed.

Will Lecture on Anglo-Saxon Poets

All the noted Anglo-Saxon poets have written about King Arthur, and a discussion of these poems, with selections, will be the subject of Dr. W. L. MacDonald's address at Victoria College at 8:15 o'clock this evening. The University Extension invite all interested to be present at this lecture.

WOMAN BUYS ISLAND FOXES

Mrs. Nell K. Wilson Says Vancouver Island Animals Finest She Ever Saw

Mrs. Nell K. Wilson, owner of High Mountain silver fox ranch in Nevada, left for home yesterday after visiting many of the Vancouver Island silver fox ranches. Mrs. Wilson came here as a result of meeting Mr. Frazer C. M. Lampton, London fur expert, with the idea of obtaining some high grade registered silver foxes to add to the stock of her ranch, which she has successfully operated for four years.

With the object of putting new blood into her stock, Mrs. Wilson bought several silver foxes at a price of $60 per pound live weight, in her own words. She said before leaving that Vancouver Island silver foxes were among the finest that she had ever seen.

CANADA'S WAR PAINTINGS

Now Available for Every Home

CANADIAN V. C.'s

YOUNG Canadians know nothing of the deeds of valor which won for Canadians the Victoria Cross. This article, the first of a series, tells the magnificent story of our War Heroes.

MACLEAN'S MAGAZINE has secured special permission from the National Gallery of Canada to reproduce a number of the outstanding paintings of the million-dollar Memorial Collection of War Pictures. These paintings are from the brushes of the most noted artists of Great Britain and Canada. They depict in a vivid and realistic way the heroic activities of Canadian troops during the great conflict of 1914-1918. November 15th MacLean's will carry the first of the series—

"THE FLAG"—by Byam Shaw.

This picture will be reproduced in the original colors on heavy quality paper and so bound as to be easily removed for framing. Many following issues of MACLEAN'S will also carry reproductions of these paintings, thus offering to every reader a colorful story of Canada's War Effort. Other of the paintings already decided upon for reproduction, are:

"CANADA'S ANSWER" by Norman Wilkinson, R.I.

"THE SECOND BATTLE OF YPRES" by Richard Jack, A.R.A.

"THE LANDING AT ST. NAZAIRE" by Edgar Bundy.

"VIMY RIDGE" by Richard Jack, A.R.A.

"WAR IN THE AIR" by Nesbitt.

Start with the first of the series. Be sure to get your copy of this impressive picture in the November 15th issue of MacLean's Magazine.

Altogether an Issue Chock Full of Entertainment

"When I Acted with Terry"

By ARTHUR STRINGER

IMAGINE yourself picked as a "super" to appear on the stage with Henry Irving and Ellen Terry. Imagine the gallery packed with Varsity men. Imagine the play at its tensest moment. Then hear a Voice from the Gods call "ARTHUR, YOUR STOCKINGS ARE COMING DOWN!" Imagine yourself in a suit of armor, finding that your street clothes had been pinched, and walking through the streets of Toronto inside a clanking boiler! That's what happened to Arthur Stringer. He tells about it in some intimate confessions.

FICTION

"NAUGHT BROKEN SAVE THIS BODY" by Brereton Atlee. One of the most powerful stories of war in the air ever written. The story of a clash between two knights of the clouds; of the cleansing power of a woman's tears, a forlorn hope and the bitter glory of defeat in victory.

"THE LORDLY VAGABOND" by W. W. Murray. A complete novelette with a thrill a minute.

"COYOTE JOE" by J. Paul Loomis. In which a red-headed Diana prospects the heart of a "no-count" of the cow country.

"FINN" A sea yarn by Louis Arthur Cunningham.

"WITH A HEY NORTON" by J. E. Middleton.

That Big Swim Argument

IN THE Marathon Swim the Canadian National Exhibition staged last September, there was only one winner. Lake Ontario. Georges Michel stayed in the icy water over eleven hours and the Man in the Street frantically demanded that he be given the lion's share of the $25,000 purse. The Swim Committee couldn't see it. Newspapers printed thousands of words regarding the controversy. BUT—only a few men on the inside knew the facts. Read what James A. Cowan has to say in "They All Quit Cold." He settles one of the hottest arguments international sport has ever provoked.
